Curious about clouds? Join local author Maria Mudd Ruth to explore these shape-shifting natural wonders and learn how to talk about them, how to watch them, and why. She has been researching, watching, photographing, and blogging about clouds for nearly a decade; her book "A Sideways Look at Clouds" is the story of her quite accidental infatuation with and education about the clouds above. A captivating storyteller, Ruth blends science, wonder, and humor to take the scenic route through the clouds and encourages readers to chart their own unique, rambling course.

Her presentation features a slide presentation, book reading, and Q&A.

This program will occur after regular library hours and no other services will be available.
